WELL-KNOWN MAN ANSWERS LAST SUMMONS

Funeral services were held Wednesday morning at Mt Carmel church for John E. Weller, well-known banker of this city, who passed away at his home on Edgewood road Monday evening following a long illness. A requiem mass at the church was followed by interment in St. John's cemetery in San Mateo.

The deceased was one of the best known bankers of the county. He became identified with local financial interests when he became manager of the Redwood City Commercial Bank. Later when this institution was taken over by the Bank of Italy, he retained his position at the branch, later becoming assistant vice-president of the Bank of Italy. He was a native of Wisconsin and was 69 years of age. The last 40 years had been spent in this county where he lived in Menlo Park, San Mateo, and later in Redwood City, where he came 17 years ago. He was a kindly, friendly gentleman and made many friends.

Surviving the deceased are his wife, Mrs. Josephine E. Weller, and one daughter, Mrs. Adolph Gugel. The family residence is at 502 Edgewood road.

Attorney Lee T. Ross, accompanied by a number of friends from San Mateo, left yesterday for a trip to the east. He will be away for several weeks and will return through the Panama canal.

PENINSULA PAVING COMPANY SHOWS APPRECIATION

As a token of their appreciation of the services rendered by the Redwood City fire department at a fire in their plant on Thursday morning, August 18th, the Peninsula Paving Company sent Mayor Henry A. Beeger a check for $100 to be used for the benefit of the fire department.

The fire occurred at 4:45 o'clock Thursday morning, and is believed to have started either in the oil pit or the boiler room of the road oil plant. T he fire completely destroyed the boiler room and the oil pit. Two oil trucks were also badly damaged. The whole plant and many pieces of eqoipment were threatened with destruction.

The fire in the oil pit was put out by the use of sand and Foamite, the latter being taken from two hand carts, owned by the Standard and Shell Oil Companies.

RYAN BANQUETED IN SAN MATEO

Mark Ryan was the guest of honor at a banquet, held at the Benjamin Franklin hotel in San Mateo last Saturday evening.

The banquet was attended by fire chiefs and their wives from all the East Bay and Peninsula cities. Jay Stevens, state fire marshal, Sam Short, retired chief of Oakland, Thomas R. Murphy of San Francisco, and Chief Plummer of San Jose, were among those present.

After the banquet a large number of the chiefs and their wives attended the Menlo Park fire department's annual dance which was held in the Franciscans hall.

Board Must Answer Alternative Writ

The board of supervisors of this county must on or before the 19th of this month either redistrict the supervisorial districts according to population or show cause why they have not done so. This action is mandatory upon them since the issuance of a writ from the court of Judge J. R. Welch of Santa Clara county obtained by Fredrick Peterson of Burlingame including the late Barlow Furgeson has for the past two years been trying to secure a redistricting of the county. In this, however, he has so far been unsuccessful. The matter has been carried to the courts, and Judge Geo. H. Buck of this county asked that the State Judicial Council select some jurist outside of the county to act upon the matter. Judge Welch of Santa Clara was named and has had the case under consideration.

Judge Welch in his opinion states that the present district plan of the county was laid out in 1900 when the population of the county was about 12,000. It is now more than 70,000 and the centers of population have changed. The present district plan is not in accord with the present division of population.

The coastside of the county is preparing to fight the proposed change, as a redistricting plan, according to population, would result in the loss to the coastside of one of its representatives.

Two Armed Bandits Rob Mountain House

The Mountain House, better known as Brynes' store was the scene of a bold hold-up late last Friday night, when two armed men held up and robbed Mr. and Mrs. August Baulhaus, proprietors, and three customers.

While one of the bandits covered the five persons with a revolver, his companion removed whatever cash and jewelry they possessed and finally emptied the cash drawer of the store. From the latter source they took $120. From the three men guests of the resort, Frank Fetters, Pete Picchi and Clyde Shadd, all of Halfmoon Bay, they took cash and jewelry, valued at more than $800.

Before leaving the bandits put the telephone out of commission, then drove away threatening to shoot anyone who made a move to stop them. Because the telephone had been demolished, it was almost an hour before the sheriff's office was notified. Sheriff McGrath, deputies, Larrecou,, Jara and Quindan immediately responded. Some clues were found which may result in the apprehension of the two bandits.

The following night two men held up a soft drink parlor in Millbrae in much the same manner. The descriptions of these bandits tally in every respect with that of the two of the Mountain House. Their guns were the same, one carrying a small automatic and the other a large revolver. Even their accent, decidely southern, was the same. A the Millbrae resort seven persons were robbed and a considerable amount of loot taken. The bandits made their escape in a red touring car.

Gets Ten Days for Attempted Theft

When Jasper Hays, 24, an attendant at the Base Hospital o Menlo Park, endeavored to remove a pair of pants containing $60 in currency from a ward at the hospital, he had not figured upon the owner of the trousers Joseph Greggs being awake. Greggs, however, saw Hays leaving in company with his nether garments, and immediately began a one-man battle which resulted in hospital attendeants summoning the sheriff's office. Deputies Jara and Quinlan responded and brought Hays to the jail here Hays was sentenced by Justice o the Peace Griffin to spend 10 days in the county jail.

Jackson Street People Ask for More Lights

A petition was received by the board of trustees Tuesday signed by a number of residents of the 500 block on Jackson street. The petition asks that two additional lights be installed on Jackson street, one at the corner of Jackson and Cleveland and the other at Fulton and Jackson streets. The matter was referred to C. E. Collins, who will report at the next meeting of the board upon the necessity for the lights.

CITY TAX RATE FIXED BY TRUSTEES

The fixing of the city tax rate for the coming year occupied a large portion of the regular meeting of the board of trustees of this city Tuesday evening. City Attorney Mansfield stated that the needs of the city for the year would be $151,394.91. This amount was divided in the following manner:

Bonds redemption and interest due, $33,459.77.

Library Fund, $4,966.44.

General Municipal Disbursements, $93,107.

Unpaid District Assessments, $19,861.76.

This latter fund is to take care of the principal and interest in any improvement assessments which may fall due and remain unpaid by property owners. It will create a surplus to take care of these payments in the future and will eventually return to the city treasury as property upon which assessments remain unpaid can be sold.

The tax rate fixed upon to cover these various expenses was $1.24 for the old town. For the new town the rate was $1.23 and for the territory recently annexed the rate was fixed at .95.

Miss Ruth B. Tatum Called by Death

Early Sunday morning Miss Ruth B. Tatum, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Tatum of Arch street, passed away following a long illness. She had been an invalid all her life and her death came as a surcease to her suffering. She was only 18 years of age, but during her short life time she had, by her patience under suffering and by her kindly manner, made many friends who are grieved at her passing and whose sympathy is extended to the bereaved family.

Ruth was the only child in the family. She was born in Dinuba Tulare county, but came here with her family when a little girl and has spent practically all of her life in this city.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the parlors of Layng & Tinney. The services were conducted by the Christian Science church, Mrs. Carrie Urch acting as reader. Interment was in Alta Mesa cemetery at Mayfield

Football Aims Told In Talk By Dimmick

Ray Dimmick, new athletic coach of the Sequoia Union High School, in an address Tuesday evening before the Redwood City Exchange Club, told of the aims of the school in athletics. Dimmick is creating a football team from raw material which he expects to develop into a winning eleven before the season is over. The first game of the season will be played today when the Sequoia gridders will meet a team from Cogswell school of San Francisco on the local field.

The chairman of the meeting was Attorney A. J. Stebenne. An enjoyable feature of the meetin, was a number of violin selection by Harry and Howard Borquin.

Lighting Districts

Beresford, .19; Belmont, .19; Colma, .44; Emerald Lake, .69; Halfmoon Bay, .42; Lomita Park .57; Menlo Park, .30; Millbrae, .48; Montara, .28; North Palo Alto, .70; Ravenswood, .48; Visitacion, .55.

Special Districts

Three Cities Mosquito, .059; Pulgas Mosquito, .076; Bayshore fire, $1.50; Halfmoon Bay fire, 1.50; Lomita Park fire, 1.40; Menlo Park fire, .23; and Woodside fire, .35.

Local Man Killed; Car Turns Over

When the car which he was driving went over a ten-foot bank and turned over pinning him beneath it, Al Lowe of this city was almost instantly killed last Sunday morning. Lowe, with two friends, Frank Cox and Bruce Scofield, both of Rucker, were driving near Gilroy on the Madonna hot springs road. In making a turn in the road the machine rolled over the bank.

An inquest was held in Gilroy on Monday by Coroner Amos O. Williams. It was found that Lowe had met his death when his lung was pierced by a piece of wood torn from the car as it rolled over. Neither Cox nor Scofield were seriously injured, although both received minor injuries. Cox was able to testify at the inquest.

Lowe was well known here where he had been engaged in the well drilling business for many years, having been associated with his father, J. W. Lowe, pioneer well borer of the peninsula, and later succeeding him in the business. He had also been a well known figure in local politics. He served as deputy county clerk under the late Joseph H. Nash and as deputy county county recorder under Harold Heiner. We was a member of the Redwood City fire department and served a term as chief of that organization in 1906. He was a member of Palo Alto lodge B. P. O. E. and of Redwood City Lodge F. & A. M.

Funeral services were held for the deceased Wednesday morning from the parlors of the James Crowe Company. The services were conducted by the local Masonic lodge and were followed by interment in Cypress Lawn cemetery.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Beatrice Lowe, by his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Lowe and by two sisters and a brother, Mrs. Albert Pierson of San Francisco, Miss Evelyn Lowe and Irby M. Lowe of this city.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD FOR MRS. M. M. ANDREWS

Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Mollie M. Andrews, who passed away at the family home 456 Standish street, following a protracted illness. The funeral was held from the parlors of the James Crowe Co., and was conducted by Rev. A. H. Clark. Interment was in Cypress Lawn cemetery.

Mrs. Andrews was the wife of Samuel Andrews and is also survived by a son, Kenneth Andrews, a student in Sequoia Union High School, and by several sisters, one of them being Mrs. C. Dewey of Panama a former resident of this city. Mrs. Andrews was an ative of Missouri and was 38 years of age.

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN BURIED LAST MONDAY

Funeral services were held Monday in San Francisco for Mrs. Henry C. Finkler of this city, who passed away in San Francisco following three weeks' illness. A requiem mass by Father C. E. Kennedy was celebrated in St. Paul's Catholic church and was followed by interment in Holy Cross cemetery at Colma.

Mrs. Finkler was the wife of Henry C. Finkler of this city, who is secretary of the State Supreme Julges since April 23, 1878, and now in San Francisco. The family has made its home in this city for the past twenty years and possess a beautiful residence and a large tract of land on the West Union road west of town.

Mrs. Finkler was very well known and prior to her illness was a very active member of the local social set. She was a charter member of the Redwood City Woman's Club and was the third president of that organization, and was for many years one of the most active workers for the Womans Club in this city. She also served for some time as treasurer of the club.

The deceased was a native of Salem, Oregon, and was the sister of the late James M., Arthur G., and Charles J. Brophy and Mrs. S. Waite.

Mrs. Finkler died in the Franklin hospital, San Francisco at 1:45 a. m. of the 3rd inst. having arrived only the day previous, as she was so much attached to her home here that she would not consent to be removed to any institution.

Officers of Hi-Y Hold Meeting

The officers of the Burlingame and Sequoia Hi-Y clubs met at Doxsee's Cabin on the Skyline boulevard Sunday afternoon and discussed ways and means of making these clubs more effective. The presidents of these clubs gave a resume of the club activities during the past year with comments as to the value of each. Mr. Robert Simcock, the executive secretary of the Y. M. C. A. for San Mateo county told of the activities of successful Hi-Y. Clubs in southern California. With these suggestions before them the officers of each of the clubs set down a tentative program to be presented to the clubs for approval. Much emphasis was given in setting activities which would further the Hi-Y purpose, that of "Clean Speech, Clean Sports, Clean Scholarship, Clean Contagious Christian Living."

Roy A. Hohberger, the local Y. M. C. A. Secretary, acted as chairman. The officers of the Sequoia Hi-Y who were present were Arthur Lampkin, president; Arville Whitehead, vice-president Fred Kalenborn, secretary; and Clarence Stilleson, treasurer.

The first meeting of the Sequoia Hi-Y is being planned for next Monday evening.

State Printing Department Saves School Money

Special to the Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO, September 8—A penny saved for the schools is a penny well earned, according to State Printer Charles Whitmore, who announced yesterday the saving of over $18,450 in the state printing of three types of text books recently.

Human geographies to the number of 25,340 were prepared by the state at a total cost of 70 cents each, including distribution, as against a commercial cost of $1.10, representing an economy of $10,136. On the printing of 25,500 readers a saving of $7650 was effected and on 20,000 physiologies $800 was saved.

SCHOOLS LEAD IN ECONOMY

San Mateo County Leads in School Economy for Year

By Clem Whitaker
Special to the Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO, September 8—California's average youngster of school age costs the taxpayers $68.52 per year during the time he is securing the first rudiments of education in the kindergarten.

When the same child goes into the elementary schools, the cost of educating him is $97.01 yearly.

And when he reaches high school the annual expenditure required for his education is $190.19.

This interesting analysis of the cost of education during the year just ended was made public yesterday by William John Cooper, state superintendent of public instruction, in a survey of the educational expenditures in each county.

San Mateo county established the best record among the counties for low elementary school costs with a per capita of $66.10, or some $30 below the average in the state at large.

Santa Clara, an adjoining county, came through with the lowest cost record in the high schools with a per capita of $146.94; or about $45 lower than the state average in this division.

Lassen county, with a per capita of $51.34 or about $17 less than the average in the state at large, was one of the lowest in its kindergarten costs. Mendocino county also established a low record in the kindergarten, its per capita being $59.73.

Merced county was sixth lowest among the 58 counties in elementary school expenditures on a per capita basis, with an average of $77.15.

The cost of education has doubled in some departments and trebled in others during the past decade, according to the report, but the child of today, says Superintendent Cooper, is getting a far better education than his father received in the little red school house of yesterday, despite father's opinion on the moot question.

Swimming Stars to Appear Here

Johnny Weissmuller, world champion swimmer, Pete Des Jardins, world fancy diving champion, Dave Fall, intercollegiate champion and other aquatic stars will appear at the Sequoia high school pool, Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. They will present a program of swimming and fancy diving while Weissmuller and Des Jardins will go through several of their famous stunts.

The general public is invited to attend, twenty-five cents being charged to meet the expense of bringing these famous stars to Redwood City. Students having student body cards will be charged fifteen cents.

The swimming department of Stanford University and the physical education department at Sequoia have made this exhibition possible.

To enable the students out for teams to see the meet, all practice for sports will be suspended on Monday afternoon.

DUMPING OF GARBAGE CAUSE OF COMPLAINT

The indiscriminate dumping of garbage by the public on the property of the Stauffer Chemical Co. on the marsh east of town, caused a lengthy discussion of the garbage problem before the board of trustees Tuesday evening. It is the endeavor of the Redwood Garbage Co. to keep the dump looking presentable, but in this they are hampered by persons who leave auto bodies, cans and other refuse all over the tract. The city is at present without power to regulate dumping there as it is outside of the city limits.

It was proposed by Trustee Thorning that the city lease the property and prohibit all dumping except by the licensed garbage collectors. City Attorney Mansfield, however, stated that even if the city leased the property it would be without power to prosecute those who dumped garbage there except under the criminal code in the township courts. No really satisfactory solution of the problem has as yet been devised, although several suggestions were made.

A. Arata, proprietor of the garbage company, stated that he had secured another dumping ground to be used if the present dump were ever closed.

An army of millions of crickets, which seriously interfered with the main intersection's traffic officer and kept ladies gingerly side-stepping on the walks, invaded Brawley last week. The screechers gathered under arc lights inches deep while store proprietors swept them out of entrances by the bucketful and burned them in the street. No damage to vegetation was reported.

A miniature re-enacting of the mania of gold rush days occurred on the ranch of Jeff Fruit on Amsterdam road, Merced, when a workman found gold dust sticking to a drill used in boring a well on the ranch when he lifted it to be sharpened. Now Fruit is debating the question, "Shall it be well or gold mine?" with all indications pointing to the latter. The well site is on the north bank of the Merced river.

September will be a month of conventions in Santa Cruz. The Builders' Exchange will be held on September 3, 4 and 5; the Native Sons of the Golden West Admission Day celebration, September 9, 10 and 11; the Pacific Coast Gas Associaton, September 12 to 17, and the State Retail Growers, September 25 to 28.

Good road conditions are attracting more motorists to Yosemite for this season of the year from other States than ever before. Such is the opinion of Park Superintendent W. B. Lewis. "During the month of July," stated Superintendent Lewis, "1,544 automobiles from forty-six States, the District of Columbia, Canada, British Columbia, Hawaii and Panama entered the Yosemite National Park."

George Messer, 32, San Francisco mechanic, was recently officially recogized by the State government as the tallest man in California. He stands 6 feet 9½ inches in his stocking feet and weighs 220 pounds. Directors of the California State Fair closed the entry list in the exposition contest to select the State's altitude champion and gave Messer first place. Second honors went to E. E. Dickey of Hollywood, whose height is 6 feet 8½ inches. Messer is a native son and was born at Tracy, San Joaquin County.

Oil production for the San Joaquin Valley for July totaled 4,887,445 barrels, according to figures compiled by the American Petroleum Institute's Pacific Coast office. This production came from 6,159 wells now on the producing list. The daily averages for the month was 158,659 barrels as against 160,441 barrels for the month of June. This is a decrease of 1,782 barrels daily, indicating that the attempt of the companies to hold down production to relieve the storage conditions is bearing fruit.

Dr. N. P. Barbour, of Stockton, major in the medical corps of the California National Guard and commanding officer of the medical detachment of the 143rd Field Artillery, has been ordered to Carlisle Barracks, Pennsylvania, for a six-weeks' course of intensive training at the army medical field service school. Dr. Barbour is the only California officer honored with such a call. California is apportioned one medical officer a year at the school.

Jail sentences imposed on members of California National Guard companies for breaches of military or civil regulatons as the result of peacetime trials before summary court are binding and must be served, just as if they were meted out by a civil court to a citizen. This is the holding of Attorney General Webb in an opinion to District Attorney Norby of Yuba County. Norby questioned such a sentence, believing it in violation of the State constitution.

With Assemblyman Frank L. Coombs of Napa as "unofficial chaperon," two special trains carrying 800 Legionnaires left California last week for the second doughboy invasion of Paris, the American Legion convention.

Expenditures on new roads in California this year, it is estimated, will exceed the high total of any of the eleven States in Western America, according to an analysis of estimated revenues for road purposes tabulated for Martin Madsen, president of the Madsen Iron Works, San Francisco. At the end of the fiscal year, in June, 1928, it has been reckoned that $180,000,000 will have been spent on new highways and the maintenance of existing arteries by the States of California, Washington, Oregon, Nevada, New Mexico, Idaho, Arizona, Colorado, Montana, Utah and Wyoming.

Plans for the $7,000,000 Firestone Tire and Rubber Company's plant are being prepared by architects of Los Angeles. The Firestone plant will be erected on a forty-acre site bound by Alameda street, Manchester avenue, Santa Fe avenue and the Southern Pacific Railways Company's tracks, Los Angeles, near South Gate.

All California hair dressers, cosmeticians and similar beauty specialists must have State licenses after October 1 and will be guilty of a misdemeanor if they practice without them, according to the terms of the new State cosmetology act.

Substantiating her claim to being the fastest-growing metropolis in the world, the populaton of Los Angeles which at the time of the 1920 Federal census stood at 576,673, is now 1,242,700.

More than 1,200 delegates and guests are expected to attend the eighth annual convention of the State Builders Echange which will be held at Santa Cruz this week. The arrangements for the convention and outing being made by a committee of the San Francisco Builders Exchange.

Two hundred and twenty city blocks of developed suburban property will be added to Bakersfield area soon, if annexation plans which are being completed now are indorsed by qualified voters during an annexation election to be held in the district during the early part of November.

A complete report of property valuation embracing every parcel of land in the city of San Francisco, and totaling $891,746,210 was placed on file last week in the office of Assessor Russel L. Wolden. The report is the result of a year's survey conducted by James G. Stafford, and cost approximately $67,000. It shows that a total of 177,000 pieces of property were checked and valued for taxation purposes.

Whether or not the soil, water and climate of Kern County is adapted to producton of shrub rubber soon may be determined, as the result of tests that have been conducted during the last four years at the United States Experimental Farm at Shafter, according to Wolford B. Camp, agronomist, in charge, and if the experiments prove successful, thousands of acres of heretofore useless safe-brush lands in Kern County can be reclaimed to highly productive purposes, and an industry scarcely second in its importance to petroleum may be established.

California's habit of shattering her own records will again be stressed when total ice cream sales in this State for 1927 are finally tabulated, it was predicted by D. M. Dorman, president of California Dairies, Inc., of Los Angeles. Predictons made early in the current year set an increase of 10 per cent in State consumption compared with 1926, when more than 10,000,000 gallons, retailing at nearly $20,000,000, were required to satisfy the Sunshine State's 4,500,000 residents.

Caliente Canyon district, thirty-five miles east of Bakerfield, now is witnessing the resumption of an important scale of gold and silver mining operations. The Zenda Company has started to operate its 200-ton mill under the direction of Frank Bewley, and it is believed there is sufficient tonnage of low-grade ore to keep it running indefinitely. The company has 900 acres in the Amalie district, fifteen miles northeast of Caliente, and also is doing extensive development work on the Calico mine in the Panamint area, east of Mojave.

Information has been given out at Mariposa, Mariposa county, that a ten-stamp mill is to be built on the Vanderbilt gold mining claim in the Darrah district. Development work has been in progress on this claim for the past two years and is reported that a shute of fine ore has been encountered.

That he will introduce his bill in the December session of Congress, providing for the deeding of 1,200 acres of forest lands in the Calaveras Big Trees to the State of California, was expressed in Stockton last week by Congressman Harry L. Englebright of the First Congressional District of California. The bill was introduced and passed in the last session but due to a last-minute rush, did not make its way though the Senate. The bill was indorsed by the forestry service, State Park Associaton and the Calaveras Grove Association which was organized last year to have the Calaveras Big Trees set aside as a public park. Another bill he will introduce provides for the removal of income tax on dividends derived from gold corporations.

Franklin Guest Smith of Redlands was last week nominated by United States Senator Samuel Shortridge to the Secretary of War as his principal selection from California to the United States Military Academy class entering West Point in July, 1928. His selection must be approved by the Secretary of War before the candidate is accepted at the academy.

San Francisco's new traffic ordinance, recommended by Dr. Miller McClintock after a detailed survey under auspices of the San Francisco Traffic Survey Committee, was unanimously passed last week by the Board of Supervisors. It will become effective, for the future guidance of motorists and pedestrials, as soon as the remaining formalities of printing and final passage are completed—a matter of a few weeks.

Among the St. Helena exhibits at the Napa County Fair, held last week, there is a four-legged chicken that was raised by S. Barberi of St. Helena. The chicken is about eight months old, and forms a freak exhibit at the fair.

With the appropriation of a $25,000 purse by the town of Capitola for the winners of a twenty-two mile swim from Capitola-by-the-Sea to Monterey, one of the biggest water marathons in history is expected. The event has been scheduled for next New Year's Day. Rules for the swim are now being organized at Capitola and it is expected that entry blanks will be available in another month. The contest will be open to both men and women and officials there predict that some of the world's best swimmers will come to Capitola to compete in in the New Year's marathon.

Preliminary plans are being drawn for a ten-story class A reinforced concrete hotel building, to contain 214 rooms, ballroom and private dining rooms, to be erected on West Santa Clara street, San Jose, the site of the old Notre Dame Convent, for the San Jose Hotel Corporation.

The State Veterans' Welfare finance committee, headed by Governor C. C. Young, last week authorized sale of $2,500,000 worth of veterans' welfare bonds on November 3 to continue purchase of farms and homes for California former service men. The securities will bear 4 per cent interest.

Must Function Properly for You to Be Well.

LATE hours, rich foods and stimulating drinks are all hard on our kidneys. If their action becomes sluggish, they do not thoroughly cleanse the blood of poisonous wastes.

Such impurities are apt to make one dull, tired and achy, with often a nagging backache, drowsy headaches and dizziness. A common warning of imperfect kidney action is scanty or burning excretions.

Requires More Wealth to Be Called Rich Now

A recent survey shows the wealth of America has risen one-third in five years, but it requires much more wealth to be a rich man today than it did years ago. In presenting the citizens of Bethel, Conn., which was his boyhood home, with a bronze fountain, P. T. Barnum said in his presentation speech:

"Esquire Tom Taylor was a large, majestic-looking man, of great will force, and was considered the richest man in Bethel. Mr. Eli Judd was marked second in point of wealth. Every year I took $12 to Squire Tom Taylor to pay the interest on a $200 note my father owed him. I also annually carried $4.50 to Eli Judd for interest on a $75 note which he held against my father.

"As these wealthy men quietly turned each note filed away in a package till they found the note of my father, I trembled with awe to think I stood in the presence of such wonderfully rich men. It was estimated that the richer of them was actually worth $3,000."

Rats

London has always had a large rat population, but now it is assuming menacing proportions.

The old English black rat was almost displaced by the Norwegian variety, which in turn is being driven out by the small black "ship rat" that can get into places no other rat could reach. Rodents of the latter type have even been known to travel on telephone wires.

Now a new brand has been discovered in large numbers in the neighborhood of Piccadilly. They are albino rats, with pink eyes, white hair, and white skins, and are quite as fierce as the other kinds. It is suggested they have bred from escaped fame specimens.

Chicks in Airplane Ride

Within a day after they had pecked their way into the world 350 chickens took an airplane ride from their native city of Sussex, England, to their present home in the Rhine-Hessian village of Gernsheim. Hardly were they out of their shells when they were packed in a crate, rushed to the Croydon airport, and taken by airplane to Cologne. There a truck rushed them to the railway station and a fast passenger train landed them in their new home before sundown. Not a single chick was lost on the trip, and all chirped most of the way and on arrival. They were taken into Germany to improve certain German strains.

THE ALIEN MASS

GINO SPERANZO, in his book "Race or Nation," vividly describes the danger of the "alien mass" in this country, explains why this group is a menace, and suggests as a remedy the "abolition" of immigration.

Interesting statistics are given in support of his reasoning, statistics that are somewhat startling to those who have not studied to any extent this phase of our national life. For instance, it is pointed out that in 1920 out of a white population of about 95,000,000 nearly 14,000,000 were born in forty-five different foreign countries, and 23,000,000 more were of foreign or half-foreign parentage. These 14,000,000 foreign born, as a part of more than 34,000,000 of aliens officially admitted into the United States from all countries since 1820, are supporting and reading 1,052 papers in more than thirty different languages varying from Arabic to Yiddish, from Albanian to Welsh. It is further stated that in a single block in New York City he found eighteen different languages spoken and a public school in that city which children of twenty-six different nationalities attend. In the city of Newark, N. J., only twenty-nine per cent of the white children in the schools are of fathers born in the United States; that is, in a school enrollment of 71,537, only 20,898 of the white children have fathers who were born here. Of the others, 19,817 have fathers born in Italy,10,441 are the children of Lithuanian, Ukrainian, Lett and Russian fathers, while 4,504—4,268—8,390 and 1,234 are, respectively, of Austrian West and South Slavic, German, British and Hungarian parents.

Furthermore, Mr. Speranza stated that the majority of these aliens do not attempt to become Americanized, learn or adopt the language, ideals and customs of this country but, on the other hand, strive to maintain themselves, and instruct their descendants, in the ways of the countries from which they came. In fact, "these differentiating elements, through the momentum of their own expanding volume and strength, become increasingly aggressive in their more or less consciously organized resistance to absorption until they gradually reach a point where they will actually attempt to impose their views and their principles, their interpretations and their standards upon the historic American majority."

HELPING THE TEAM OUT

THE Sequoia grid team will clash this morning with a team from Cogswell school of San Francisco. This will be the first game of the season for the local boys, and the result may have an influence which will determine much of their future playing. The team which will meet Cogswell this morning is practically a new team, only one member having played in the team of last year Coach Dimmick therefore is anxious that the team should receive a general support and interest from the public.

By attending the team's first game, by cheering and boosting, the people of Redwood City and vicinity can help develop the team into a creditable asset to the community. Many of the players will be on teams for the next few years, and as the team is developed from year to year, more of the experienced players will remain. This new method of encouraging the newer men to come out for football practice is a step toward developing future football players for Sequoia.

A good winning team is an asset to the town and may be developed into a distinct advantage. For this reason we bespeak the general support of the community for the Sequoia team.

NEW MOTOR LAWS

By George E. Sanford,
General Attorney
California State
Automobile Association

An outstanding safety addition to the law is that which amends Section 142 of the Vehicle Act to provide for compilation by the state of a complete record of accidents involving death or injury, their causes and locations.

The obligation imposed upon the motorist under this new provision is that the driver of any vehicle involved in such an accident shall, within twenty-four hours, supply a report of same to the proper authorities. The report must be made to the city police when the injury occurs in incorporated cities, and elsewhere direct to the State Division of Motor Vehicles. Police Departments are required to forward reports received by them to the Division. Heretofore, such reports have been made to police or to sheriffs of counties, and there was no provision centralizing these reports in a single governmental department for purposes of study.

The Division is now required to tabulate and analyze the data contained in such accident reports and to publish annually, or at more frequent intervals, statistical information gathered as to the number, cause and location of accidents. Thus will be secured a complete record in California of the traffic accident situation and for the first time, comprehensive and valuable information will be available to assist in the work of accident reduction. This amendment constitutes a forward step in safety work long sought by the California State Automobile Association.

So far as the individual motorist is concerned, the law makes it a misdemeanor for operators of motor vehicles to fail to report accidents of this character as required. The Division is given permission under this new provinsion to require motorists involved in such accidents, as well as witnesses, to file supplementary reports whenever the Division deems the original reports insuficient. All such reports shall be without prejudice and shall not be admissible os evidence in any trial, civil or criminal, arising out of such accidents, except for the sole purpose of proving compliance with this Section. Such supplementary reports are for the information of the Division only.

BELLE MONTE COUNTRY CLUB TO BE SCENE OF BANCITALY OUTING

A Sunday outing that will draw merrymokes from a third of California and that is being advertised as about the biggest thing of its kind in the history of the sgtate, is being planned by the Bankitaly Club, made up of workers in the Bank of Italy, for the Belle Monti Country Club on September 18.

The workers in seventy-five of the branch banks in the grea system of the Bank of Italy, together with their families and friends, will make up the gues list. Covers will be laid around the barbecue pits for more than 1,000 while the hundreds of children who are expected will be given five acres, all to themselves to play in.

Preparations for the great outing have been under way for weeks. Special buildings are being erected on the five acres set aside for the children for games and pastimes. The little ones will have their own barbecue pit, and a particularly attractive feature will be a model yacht pool, for their own exclusive use. These grounds are being laid out by Blanding Sloan of San Francisco.

Golf, tennis, dancing, trapshooting and general jollification will be the order of the day. There will be hundreds of the prettiest girls in California present, all wearing their happiest smile.

The fine new clubhouse of the Belle Monti Country Club will be thrown open to the picnic guests. Prizes will be awarded for the half dozen tournaments that are being planned, and there will be gate prizes and children's prizes as well.

The merrymakers will have 350 acres of some of the most attractive rolling land in California to disport themselves in, and it will all be used. A de luxe feature will be an information desk where the picnic guests will be directed to the various tournaments and other attractions. A doctor will be in attendance and there will be first aid kits placed at strategic points, to take care of the minor sprains, charley horses, glass arms and anything else that may develop, including golf tempers and indigestion. One of the bank's statisticians has figured that it will take half a ton barbecued New York cuts, sixty and three quarters gallons of ice-cream, enough French rolls to reach from Daly City to Halfmoon Bay if placed end to end, seven bushels of golf balls and clothes basket full of tootpicks to accommodate the throng. An extra dividend will be declared on all first helpings at the barbecue pits, whiling the auditing department will be on hand to expert the golf cards.

The workers, families and friends of the bank's branches in Alameda, Berkeley, Burlingame, Colma, Daly City, Fairfax, Gilroy, Halfmoon Bay, Hayward, Hollister, Mill Valley, Morgan Hill, Mountain View, Palo Alto, Redwood City, San Anselmo, Sausalito, Santa Clara, South San Francisco, Sunnyvale, San Francisco, Oakland, Elmhurst, Fruitvale and Melrose will be present.

The Bancitaly Corporation, which has the honor of being the world's very biggest investment trust company, will send a big delegation. This is presided over by A. P. Giannini, founder of both the bank and the corporation, his sons L. M. and Virgil Giannini and other of the city's financial notables. William Spratt, manager of the Polk-Van Ness branch of the bank, and president of the Bankitaly Club, Miss Dorothy Ferguson, the bank's librarian, Miss Margaret Dailey, assistant manager of the women's department, and Miss M. Musgrove are among the bank leaders who are assisting in the picnic plans.

The Belle Monti club is two miles out of Belmont and about midway between San Francisco and San Jose.

SMILES PLUS SCENERY BRING TOURISTS WEST

Four reasons for the growing preeminence of the Pacific Coast as an international tourists mecca were given here this week by F. S. McGinnis, passenger traffic manager for Southern Pacific.

They are scenery, climate, luxurious modern transportation and the friendly spirit westerners display to visitors.

"It is the hearty welcome and the courteous treatment accorded tourists by the man in the street, the clerk in the store, and the crews of trains and street cars that is spreading the fame of western hospitality to the far twothest corner of the earth," McGinnis said.

"In comfort of travel the west may claim world leadership. Southern Pacific alone during the last four years has expended $258,261,243 of new capital to expand its facilities and equipment. Cars for one train, the 63-hour San Francisco Overland Limited, running between Chicago and the Pacific Coast, are valued at more than $2,000,000 and set the highest de luxe passenger standards ever achieved.

"The fact that the tourist is welcomed, but not exploited and worried by beggars and promoters, is giving the West an international reputation as a comfortable, restful and worth-while place to visit."

Physical Fitness

Perfection is an Ideal. It has never been reached in any field. It certainly has never been achieved in the sphere of Human Health.

But Progress is a Law in all things. And Progress in Health Methods has brought us CHIROPRACTIC. It has thereby helped us nearer to the Ideal in Health.

The above are not idle words, nor are they too vigorous. For the position of CHIROPRACTIC today is as impregnable as the Rock of Gibraltar.

The evolution of methods for maintaining human health has finally arrived at the only sensible, simple, logical and scientific method—THE CHIROPRACTIC METHOD OF SPINAL ADJUSTMENT.

He who would be healthy, happy and wise, can safely turn to CHIROPRACTIC.

Make it your business to investigate the Science of CHIROPRACTIC. One hour spent in honest study of its principles may repay you a thousand fold.

NATURAL RESOURCES DEVELOPED

Special to the Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO—September 8—Under the rapid development of the natural life of the state under the newly organized state department of natural resources headed by Fred G. Stevenot, pioneer miner of Carson Hill is prognosticated.

Conservation of the forest is of prime importance, in Stevenot's opinion, not only for lumbering purposes but also to conserve and retain the snow waters for late irrigation for the valleys below and to form a haven for the fish and wild game.

Co-operative agreements and arrangements looking to fire prevention and control have been entered into with approximately 20 counties in the state among which are localities of such varied interests as Santa Clara, Mendocino, Lassen and Solano counties. Already the fire hazard has been reduced and both the number and extent of fires this season lessened, M. B. Pratt, state forester, announced.

New fish hatcheries will be established with the added revenue from the increased fishing and hunting licenses, and the protection and propagation of game increased, it is assured.

County Fair Booth Attracts Attention

Special to Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO—Sept. 8—San Mateo county is "saying it with flowers" at the State Fair and saying it most effectively.

The peninsula county's booth is a bower of blooms gladioli rivaling the dahlias for the highest honors. The passing crowds are held by the fragrant odors and must stop until hypnotized by the riot of color the flaming scarlet of the blossoms only cooled by the refreshing fern background.

The San Mateoans, not to have their aesthetic side overshadow their practical in the eyes of the state, have a vegetable nook, where artichokes tantalize the palate and gleaming onions and beets look their best.

It is the "salt of the earth, too," with a miniature replica of the Leslie Salt Works in the background representing this industry peculiar to San Mateo county.

Exceeds All Previous Attendance Records

By Esto Broughton

Special to the Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO, September 8—"Where are you going, my pretty maid?

I'm going to the fair, she said."

So says everyone in the Capitol, this week. When looking in vain for officialdom in their customary pigeonholes from the Governor to the gardener they always can be located on the State Fair grounds.

Governor C. C. Young seemed as pleased as Punch with the agricultaural and industrial exposition, the first one of California's 73rd annual State Fairs, he has taken time to "do." As a result he wrote enthusiastically to Governor Trumball of Connecticut in answer to his query, "by all means have a state fair of your own, it is a great stimulation to development."

By the time the Fair is over California's governor should be as good a judge of horse "flesh" as he is of political "dark" horses for he visits the horse show nightly with two horse-loving daughters.

Another interested Fair visitor is former Governor Friend W. Richardson, who after a trip around the world still finds much novel and entertaining in his "home" state's display.

The best attendance record of all former fairs was broken by over 5,000 on the second day of the exposition when 60,000 people passed through the portals to view the most colorful and varied pageant of progress California has ever presented.

California's Scenic Attractions Heralded Far and Wide by Screen

Special to the Times-Gazette

SACRAMENTO—September 8—With the scenic attractions of the four corners of the earth rolled into one state, California can "double" for practically say any state in the nation, or any foreign principality, according to State Forester M. B. Pratt.

Data on several replicas of the central section of Indiana, all within twenty miles of California's state capitol, have been prepared by Deputy Forester W. B. Rider to facilitate the production of "Freckles," Gene Stratton Porter's famous book, Pratt disclosed in pointing out the state's versaatility in providing film background.

The production company's plans called for swamp land covered with heavy underbrush and trees resembling eastern hardwoods to create the film "Limberlost." Pines, cedars and redwoods would not meet the company's needs, it was stated, and a wood was required that would appear to be covered with eastern maples, oaks, ash, etc.

Three locations for the film production were found in the immediate vicinity of Sacramento and another near East Nicolaus, Sutter county, on the north bank of the Feather river, where the country is covered with water oak, California sycamore, mountain ash, poplar trees and heavy undergrowth. These trees, according to Pratt, closely resemble Eastern hardwoods and water holes nearby can be used to turn the section into swamp land and carry out the Limberlost illusion.

In the redwood belt near Scotis, Humboldt county, another moving picture company is re-filming scenes for "The Valley of the Giants," Pratt declared. Tahoe and Truckee are famous for their Alaskan settings and pictures which call for the attractions of the Alps, while the Sacramento river has "doubled" in recent months for three of the world's famous rivers. Near the banks of the American river, he pointed out, Buster Keaton is now engaged in filming a Kansas cyclone scene.

"Every Californian who trully comprehends the beauty and greatness of his state, with its wonderful natural resources, must be an ardent conservationist," asserted the state forester. "Perhaps it is because they realize the grandeur and versatility of our state that the members of the motion picture profession are numbered among our leading conservationists and are most liberal in using their money for protection and preservation of the state's forests."

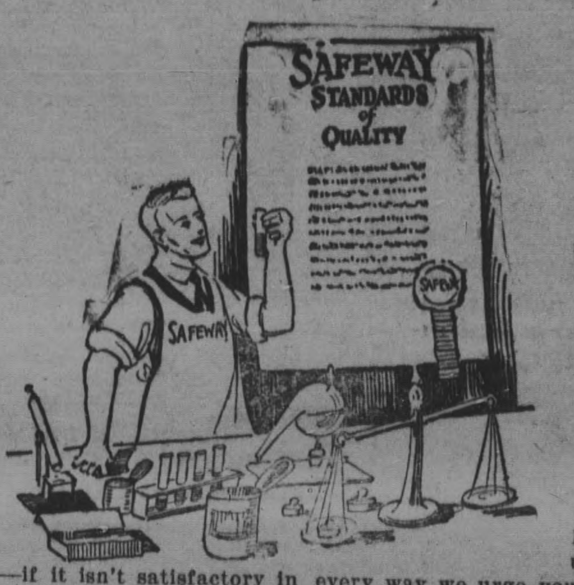
The Question of Quality



"Quality" is a flexible word—capable of many meanings. Its exact meaning can only be determined when one knows the standards of the person using it. Many use the term in a vague sense, without any fixed limitations. In our stores and markets, "quality" means something definite. We have fixed standards and tests by which the quality of every item is determined before we stock it. Thus anything we offer for sale is tested and proved by the most rigid standards and bears our absolute guarantee. Regardless of what you buy from us—no matter how low the price—if it isn't satisfactory in every way we urge you to bring it back and get your money. This is Safeway policy—the policy that hasmade us the West's Largest Food Concern.

30 Years Ago

Times-Gazette, Sept. 11, 1897

Next Tuesday, Carl Beeger, son of Trustee Beeger, starts for Germany to enter a tanning school at Freiberg. He will take a two years' course at the institution, which is noted throughout Europe for the thoroughness with which it prepares its graduates. Young Beeger is a graduate of the Redwood City Grammar school and already has a good knowledge of the tanning business. His young friends and schoolmates will meet at the home of his parents this evening and give him a farewell reception. Carl will be accompanied by E. Custer, who has been acquainting himself with this country's system of tanning leather for the past half year. Mr. Custer goes back to Germany to take charge of a large tannery.

H. W. Brown of Colma has been commissioned a notary public by Governor Budd.

Tuesday a party consisting of Leo Indig, Peter Doyle, Charles Eckhart, William Painter and Carl Allen went to the gold fields in Trinity county. Leo Indig and Peter Doyle went in a buggy, Allen goes on his wheel and the remainder of the party will travel by rail to Redding and from there will stage it to the mines.

G. P. Hartley's cottage on Phelps street has been neatly painted inside and out, the board sidewalk in front turned over, and the nails which protruded greatly to the annoyance of pedestrians, hammered in. Other property owners on Phelps street could follow Mr. Hartley's example with profit.

During the week a sample of some lemons raised on W. B. Kreeger's place at San Carlos was sent to this city. One measured 11 inches through and was 15 inches in length. They compare favorably with any raised in this state.

A blue gas flame keeps your cooking utensils clean

A perfectly working Gas Range is a delight to use.

But at times, food boiling over or dust drawn in through the air mixers will carbonize and unless the burners are cleaned these particles will close the holes or ports of the burners. The result is a yellow flame or a "popping" noise when you turn off the gas. This is improper combustion.

The burners of your Gas Range are easily removed and should be cleaned each month to insure perfect combustion and cleanliness. Merely boil the burners in a solution of lye water or caustic soda until they are thoroughly clean.

You'll find it easy to keep your Gas Range as clean as any other piece of furniture in the house. The range will operate perfectly. It will last longer. You'll enjoy its speed, cleanliness and the ease of cooking with Gas—just as thousands of other women are doing today.

HighSchool NOTES

Tentative plans are being made for a bazaar to be given just before Christmas by Sequoia girls.

Next Wednesday the senior girls will entertain the new girls, who are now freshmen, at a tea in the Tea Garden.

Miss Irene Bradley, head of the Girls' Physical Education Department, has announced that she will give a cup to the girls club that has the largest number of girls taking part in athletics and social welfare work during the year. The cup will be presented to the winning club at the last award assembly of the year, with the name of the club engraved on it.

The newly elected members of Bass Clef are Ben Rogers, Russell Smith, Lloyd Anderson, Edwin Stacy, Kenneth Barteaux and George Kirkbride.

The girls elected to Treble Clef were: Jane Ingram and Rosalie Carrington.

"Freshies," "Lady Frances," "Heads Off," and "The Nifty Shop," are four one-act operettas which will be presented under the direction of Otis M. Carrington, who has also written these erettas who has also written these four and who is music instructor at Sequoia. Mr. Carrington plans to present them all in one evening at the Sequoia auditorium sometime before Christmas alone.

"Freshies," for boys and "Lady Frances" for girls alone, are companion numbers, the setting for "Freshies" being a fraternity house and that of "Lady Frances" a sorority house. The operettas deal with life in each house. "Heads Off," with all boys in the cast, is an extravaganza while "The Nifty Shop," for girls, is a fashion show.

The last two musical comedies are new and have never been published.

Mr. Carrington also plans to finish writing a cycle of operettas for grammar schools. "Spring Glow" and "Autumn Gold" have already been written and were published this spring. "Spring Glow" has been presented in two hundred grammar schools since its publication.

Other operettas written by Mr. Carrington and presented last year at Sequoia were "Polished Pebbles" and "The Toreadors."

Burglars Enter Oil Plants Here Saturday

Burglars sometime Saturday night entered the offices of both the Standard Oil Company on Willow and Cooper streets, and the Shell Oil Company on Laurel and Cooper streets. In the former plant a screen was removed and entry gained through an open window. In the other office a window was broken. The burglars were unsuccessful in both offices in finding anything worth removing. The burglaries were reported to the local police.

METHOD OF GREASING SPRING SHACKLES

If you cannot get the grease oil through the spring shackles of your car, they should be taken out and a wire run through the lubrication recesses, the Emergency Road Service of the California State Automobile Association points out. You can then remove all foreign substances and old grease before installing again.

SOMETHING WRONG! ADULT DEATH RATE RISES AS WE SAVE CHILDREN

By Guy L. Kiefer, M. D.
Commissioner of Health, State of Michigan
Member Gorgas Memorial

Do we stop too soon in our health supervision of the individual?

Judging from the most accurate testimony, our death records, we do. More babies are being saved than ever before. More children are being protected from the hazards of communicable diseases. More physical handicaps are being corrected, giving better chances for happiness.

But apparently we are saving young lives only to have them sacrificed later. As death rates among children have been reduced, those among adults have risen. Various forms of heart disease, cerebral hemorrhage, and apoplexy, diseases of later life that could often be postponed if not actually prevented, are taking an increasing percentage of lives.

Clearly, something is wrong with our system!

Health supervision has broadened a good deal within the last twent-five years. We are no longer content with offering protection to the baby after he is born; we safeguard his prenatal existence as well. Foundations are what count, and these are laid long before a child is born. Good medical care for the prospective mother, the right foods, proper exercise, and adequate rest are the basic factors.

As soon as a baby is born he has at his command the entire health machinery of the community. Specialists are trained for his benefit, and they are ready to advise on every step of his physical and mental progress. Public health nurses carry into his home the latest information in feeding and care. If he is sick he is promptly taken care of, with no dangerous delay.

When he graduates from the infant stage to the pre-school period he finds himself equally surrounded with precautions. At this age physical defects get the best start, and life-long habits, both mental and physical, are formed. His parents are advised by competent medical authority how to safeguard this stage of his existenre.

School days have long been recognized as the golden opportunity for health measures. For the first time the children are in an easily accessible group, not scattered throughout all the homes in the city. They can be examined and their physical status determined without waiting for a possibly indifferent parent to bring them to a physician. To be sure, the important question of correction of defects rests with the parents and the family physician, but at least the start is made.

And then, with graduation from school, supervision ceases. If the boy or girl goes into a well organized industry he may still have the advantage of regular medical advice, but if he does not he obtains no assistance at all. Vital statistics show the result of such lack of supervision.

What is the answer? Periodic health examination for all adults! The same program of regular inspection that now safeguards infancy, childhod, and youth must be extended through later life, and by the individual himself. The right start is given him; upon his own intelligence, interest, and initiative depends whether he will cut short his life.

In addition to its general offices in San Francisco, the California State Automobile Association maintains district offices in twenty-six cities of Northern and Ceneral California, and a summer touring bureau office in Yosemite Valley.

THE HEALTH OF THE SCHOOL CHILD

By Edward S. Rimer, M. D.,
New York City
Member Gorgas Memorial

Starting to school is an ordeal for most children. After a summer spent largely in the open, school means a radical change in the child's daily regime.

Not only does he miss the outdoors, but the freedom of following of his own devices. He feels cooped up. His physical activities are repressed. He is made to study. His whole world is changed.

How may we prepare the child for this change and best adapt him to his new regime?

First, at the beginning of the school year, have your child examined by the family physician. This examination should be thorough, special attention being given to the eyes for possible defects of vision, the ears for impairment of hearing, the teeth for cavities or other conditions requiring dental care and the nose and throat for diseased tonsils and adenoids. Mouth breathing, snoring, frequent colds, sore throat and discharing ears may be due to infected tonsils and adenoids.

Posture should receive attention. Round shoulders, flat chest, spinal curvatures and flat feet should be noted and the necessary corrective measures begun.

The general condition of the child should be seriously and thororghly studied. Departures from the normal in heart, lungs or kidneys may thus be found.

Study your child and try to give your doctors an intelligent inventory which may help him materially in forming conclusions. Thus many defects and incipient diseases can be corrected early.

The school schedule is so crammed that too little time is allowed for open air play. It is of the utmost importance that advantage be taken of every opportunity to be in the fresh air and sunlight. Poor appetite, constipation, irritability and restless sleep are all frequent symptoms in the child who does not get outdoors enough.

Certain children who cannot easily adapt themselves to school suffer considerable mental stress and strain. They may be so unhappy that they become nervous and morose and exhibit emotional outbursts. Every effort should be made to get at the bottom of such a condition so that it can be corrected before serious damage has been done.

Rest is essential, particularly with the undernourished. Lack of gain in weight is, in a great measure, due to insufficient rest. An over-tired child is frritable, prone to disturbed sleep, and does not want to eat. Ten minutes' rest after lunch and a rest period before dinner is a great boon especially to children who tire easily. Rest should not only be physical, but mental. A quiet half hour might be a part of every child's daily regime. Over excitement is responsible for many mental and physical upsets.

Sleep is the most important form of rest. When there is unusual physical effort, cellular activity is increased, the organs function more rapidly; fatigue products are thrown off in increasing amount, and the individual tires. A child tires more quickly and needs more rest than an adult.

The boy or girl who follows a well considered arrangement of the day, so that study, meals, outdoor play, rest, and sleep each has its rightful place, bids fair to outshine the child with no such plan. This applies to all children, but with special force to the nervous or malnourished.

STORY FROM THE START

Garth Guthrie, Canadian war veteran, having to live in the open on account of weakened lungs, is factor of a Hudson's Bay post at Elkwan. He came back from the conflict with a permanently scarred face, which he realizes cost him the love of his fiancee, Edith Falconer. Sir Charles Guthrie, his brother, is a millionaire war profiteer. With Etienne Savanne, halfbreed, his firm friend, Garth meets Doctor Quarrier, geologist, and his sister Joan. Quarrier complains he has been robbed by a man known as "Laughing McDonald." At Elkwan an Indian girl, Ninda, tuberculosis victim, whom Garth has befriended, is dying. Joan, trained war nurse, cares for Ninda, but the girl dies. Three of McDonald's party visit Elkwan seeking to buy gun shells. From them Garth learns of evil talk among the Indians concerning him and Ninda. With Etienne's help Garth wins the friendship of Saul Souci, "medicine man" of the Crees, and gets his promise to persuade the Crees, to take their furs to Elkwan instead of to McDonald. Garth is ambushed by Joe Mokoman, Ninda's reputed father. "Shot," Garth's airedale companion, saves him, and the Indian is taken, a prisoner, to Elkwan. Garth sends Mokoman to McDonald with a message of defiance, and the war is on.

South of the Big Point shoals, the great Attawapiskat, carrying the drainage of a vast hinterland, debouched through two mouths, a wide delta, and, eight miles to the south, a single channel, the Lowaski. Snug in his tight little post above the delta of the upper mouth of the river, Graham, the factor, independent of the fox skins of Akimiski, waited for the rich trade from the interior to come to him. But some of the hunters trading at the post always wintered on the island and before he crossed in search of Saul, Guthrie wished to get the latest news from Albany and arrange for the dispatch of a dog-team, informing his chief of his crossing to the island. How far the crew of the schooner were prepared to go in the struggle for the trade, he had no means of knowing, but of their energy and daring there was no doubt. If Souci were successful and the free-traders attempted to interfere with the hunters crossing to Elkwan, there might be an ugly row. So the fast dog-team doubled back down the coast ice and before noon drew in to the high shore at Attawapiskat.

Graham looked up in surprise to see the tall figure of his neighbor to the north walk into the trade-room. Graham was old and waiting only for his service pension. His days with the dogs on the shore ice or inland over the white barriers were over. If McDonald were wintering on the island there would be little Akimiski fox traded at a Hudson's Bay post that year. Of that he was sure. He couldn't see how crossing to the island after the strait closed would help the matter. The schooner would get the Christmas trade and pick up the fur through the winter as it was trapped. It was hard on Elkwan, but he had his upriver trade. McDonald couldn't touch that. Thus Graham, who lacked but two years of retirement, and loved the comfort of his snug quarters.

"Well, what brings you here in thirty-below weather?" he replied to Guthrie's salutation. "I've been hugging a fire for a week, trying to thaw out."

Guthrie laughed. "I'm on my way to the island, Graham. I want you to relay this letter to Cameron—"

"The island!" Graham gasped in surprise. "How—you mean the strait's closed—set over the shoals?"

"Yes!" And Guthrie hastily outlined the situation on Akimiski and his plans.

"You think Souci will control the Elkwan hunters? Why should they cross the ice to you when McDonald will pay more for their pelts?"

Guthrie's face reflected his irritation. "Graham, I'm employed to get fur—not smoke by the stove and wait for it to come in. As Cameron expects this letter and Christmas is only ten days away, I'll thank you to start a team with it at once."

The victim of Guthrie's sarcasm reddened under the ruthless characterization of his sedentary tendencies, but his pension was near, and the risk of a dash over the young ice was Guthrie's, not his, so he magnanimously overlooked the thrust.

"I'll send a team, yes, if that's Cameron's orders. I'll say you're a fool, though, to cross. A good wind will break up that new ice and cut you off. It's never in my memory closed before January. Still, it's your job, not mine. Go ahead and get yourself drowned, if you want to."

"Some of your people winter there?"

"Oh, yes! Six or eight families. But I can't help that."

"No, you can't," agreed Guthrie, catching Etienne's furtive look. "Well, we'll have just about light enough to cross in, so I'll start."

As the dogs hurried over the wind-brushed shell of the strait, broken by drifts and hummocks, split by tide cracks, irregular with crushed ice masses lifted into pressure ridges, the eyes of the men on the light sled were focused far out on what, the week before, had been impassable black water. Eight miles out, half way across, its drift ice, thrall to tide and wind, had threatened with swift ruin the eggshell of a canoe, which challenged its barrier. But now, over the shoals, the channel had been sealed. As the dog-team reached the newly frozen gap, Etienne and Guthrie went ahead to test the ice with axes. In defiance of the tide, the fierce frost had set three-inch ice. Anxiously the men swept the width of the channel with glasses. There were no breaks. So, led by the scampering airedale and Guthrie, with Etienne driving the huskies from the tail of the sled, they took the crossing on the run.

A half-mile out when fear of thin ice had left him and he swung along with Shot in front, Garth suddenly felt the ice vibrate beneath his moccasins. The sled with the dogs would go through, unless they came with a rush. Turning as he ran, he waved to Etienne—their agreed-upon signal for speed.

"Marche! mes enfants!" The long caribou thong cracked on the lead dog's ears. With a surprised yelp Castor, spreading his feet, came with the team at a wild gallop. On they rushed, straining, slipping huskies, nails scratching the ice for footing, and swinging toboggan, urged on by Etienne, for a break through meant swift drowning for the dogs from the drag of the sled, and freezing in the stinging wind for the driver, if he reached firm ice.

A hundred yards of mad scramble and the second dog slipped, slid sideways, jerking the leader off his feet. The sled swung in a wide skid. Passing his thrashing huskies on the run, Etienne called them to follow. Before the sled stopped its swing, the dogs were up and hard on their master's heels. A hundred yards and they reached the heavier ice—minutes of suspense, and the lead was crossed.

The two friends gripped hands beside the panting dogs.

"Did you feel it?" cried Guthrie. "Thought I was going through! Felt like running on stretched canvas!"

"I saw it geeve unda' you, and crack de wheep before you turn. We go t'ro' een dat channel, and pouf! we nevaire care eef McDonald Ha! Ha! get de fur or not, eh?"

* * * * * * *

Somewhere north of Big point in a valley sheltered by the tundra from the winds off the ice fields, the sons of old Souci had a base camp. But the Indian had given Garth no rendezvous in case he managed to cross the strait before Christmas, for Souci carried a roving commission, and his work lay where he found the Elkwan hunters. To Garth the island was unknown country, but Etienne had trapped there and they started up the shore ice, bound for the mouth of the Ptarmigan, a river which headed deep in the interior, confident of learning Souci's whereabouts from the first Indian they met. For news of the coming of the old chief to the island would be passed swiftly from hunter to hunter, valley to valley. And now the closing of the strait had greatly enhanced the value and importance of Souci's embassy to the Crees. Those loyal to the old company could cross for the New Year's feast at the post, bringing their pelts; those wavering in the direction of the trade goods of McDonald could not now meet Saul's appeals with the objection that a barrier of open water, running with floe, would crush their canoes. But the longer he dwelt on the attractions of the schooner at the cove, the less confident he grew of saving much of the fox trade. Few of the fickle Crees would resist the blandishments of the free-trader's agents. Then with a start he realized that he was ignoring the scheme the old chief had outlined to Etienne, and wondered if the magic was working—if the mad medicine of the sorcerer had conjured a tabu against the schooner.

As the huskies trotted smartly up the coast of the island while Shot, free lance, ranged widely along shore in search of adventure, Guthrie's thoughts temporarily deserted his mission on Akimiski to dwell—now that he had seemingly burned his bridges—on his status at home. For it would not be foreign to his brother's egotism and reverence for the conventions to read Garth out of the family, since he had written refusing to return. The gossip, following his failure to join the staff of the Guthrie Steel company and lead Ethel Falconer in all her blond loveliness to the altar, would be gall to the palate of the recently knighted head of the Guthries. The neglect of his express command to the exile to shake the mud of James bay from his sealskin boots and assume the responsibilities of a family man and a man of family would, in all likelihood, mean that on his return to Montreal there would be no position in the works—no brother's house open—to the rebel. His personal means, inherited from his father, were modest. Charles' fortune was the result of his own efforts—and a fortuitous war. That was why Charles demanded wholesome respect and absolute obedience from his younger brother. At the thought the younger brother smiled in his fur hood, ringed with rime from his frozen breath. From the man who had led his platoon at the Somme and his battalion in front of Amiens, the dignity and swiftly made fortune of Charles commanded no deference and little respect. On his return—his return? He had committed himself to making good at Elkwan for his employers—for his own self-respect. What he had started he would see through. There might be no return—unless a certain letter in the Christmas mail should—. Then his thought, until the dogs swung off the sea-ice and into the broken going at the mouth of the Ptarmigan, were of three swift days at Elkwan and two on the coast—of eyes, abstracted, perplexed, at times wistful, and a dark head silvered with moonlight, on the high shore above the Albany.

As the dog-team left the coast and followed the rough river trail into the hills, its toil began, and Etienne's wisdom in bringing a toboggan instead of a sea sled equipped with runners was vindicated. For once under the lee of hills, they found snow deep on the shell of the river and in places, where wind eddies had dipped into the valley, new drift, through which they broke trail on snowshoes for the sled, while the dogs, who had galloped over the brushed sea-ice, wallowed to their traces. From the river fringe of willows and alders the black spruce scrub reached back up the slopes to fade and disappear under the shoulders of the barrens. There low junipers and hardy Labrador tea alone survived the hammering of the winds on the undulating miles of blueberry heath and caribou moss, swept, over exposed areas, of all snow.

Suddenly, as they rounded a bend which had shut off all view upstream, Etienne, who was ahead breaking trail, shouted and stopped, pointing in the direction of some thick scrub in the distance.

"Camp up dere!"

Rising in the still air of the valley, a wisp of bluish smoke hung against the background of black spruce.

"Good! Now we'll get some news of Souci."

Spurred by the quickened pace of the trail breaker and the call of Garth, the five huskies threw their shoulders into the collars. Then, farther on, a stretch of wind-packed snow gave them footing and the yelping team, led by Shot, raced to the tips of the hunters' camp.

"Kequay!" called Etienne, approaching the tipis half buried in the snow for protection from the wind and circled by the usual debris and paraphernalia of a winter camp. Turning to Garth he said: "De men are on de trap-line wid de dogs."

Again he called, and, after a space, a shawled head was thrust through the door flap of a tent.

"Where's your man?" asked Savanne in Cree.

"On the lines. Who are you?"

"We are from Elkwan." And, as the woman emerged from the tipi followed by another and two children, Etienne saw that he was talking with Indians from the lower rivers—strangers.

"Have you seen Saul Souci, the Elkwan Treaty Chief? Where is the camp of his sons—what river?"

The swart faces of the Cree women defied the sharp scrutiny of the half-breed. Surprise, doubt, appeared to curb a desire to laugh at the question of the stranger. They met each other's black eyes in a quizzical look; then the elder of the two said: "Souci, the shaman, we have not seen. His sons are said to camp north of here on the Rabbit river."

The acute brain of Etienne strove to solve the riddle of the squaw's secret amusement. At last he decided that Joe Mokoman had won over their men to the free-trader, but why Souci had not appeared on the Ptarmigan was a mystery.

"Do you know the strait has closed? You can cross to Elkwan for the New Year's feast," he hazarded.

The women smiled. "We go to the trader at Seal cove with our fox pelts," said the old squaw. "There we get honest prices for fur—from the trader who always laughs."

It was evident that here Joe Mokoman had done his work well. Then Etienne cautiously began his countermining. His dark face set in a look of surprise and horror. "Did you not hear?" he cried.

"No!"

"Why this trader brought that face from the land of demons across the Big Water? He angered them. He is a sorcerer and bewitches those who bring him their pelts." Etienne hastily interpreted the conversation to Guthrie as he watched the effect of his bombshell on the startled faces of the squaws.

"He makes bad medicine?" gasped the women.

Savanne gravely nodded his hooded head, then added: "He has bewitched Joe Mokoman to betray the Cree hunters and bring them to his boat. Those who go will never love their wives and families again," he remarked with finality.

At the last the faces of the squaws visibly grayed. They chattered together excitedly. Etienne's explanation of the cause of the mutilation of McDonald had struck deep into the marrow of their superstitions. He hastily drove his advantage home.

"Saul Souci will tell you that the trader McDonald Ha! Ha! is a friend of demons."

"Saul Souci?" cried a squaw in protest. "He is a shaman and friend of the trader who laughs."

It was the turn of Savanne to have his mental balance jarred. Souci the friend of McDonald? What could they mean? But he was equal to the emergency.

"Souci, the friend of McDonald Ha! Ha! Mokoman tells that tale to the hunters because he fears Souci the shaman."

Disturbed though she was, the Cree woman laughed in Etienne's face. "Mokoman was here this morning—there are his sled tracks. One sleep ago he says Souci was at the schooner of the trader and they shook hands. Souci is the friend of McDonald Ha! Ha!"

SWEATER FOR THE SCHOOLGIRL; LUXURY MARKS FALL FASHIONS

SCHOOL wardrobe which does not include a gay sweater or two? Not good logic. Sweaters are one of those comforts of life which dare not be neglected in the planning of the schoolgirl outfit—and this holds good from kindergarten to post-graduate age.

We are accustomed, all of us, to think of the sweater in terms of knitted styling, but the slip-on in the picture is unique in that it is made with needle, net and yarn. It requires only a yard of the net for the foundation of this little slip-on as shown, with two balls of yarn one color and three of another. It is worked in an over-and-over darning stitch, with crocheted collar, cuffs and hemline.

This model happens to be done in a simple checker design, which is very appropriate for a child, but for grown-ups handsome and intricate tapestry effects are worked out in rich colorings. Some ambitious women are even making full-length coats for themselves of yarn and net, weaving the whole foundation of solid tan or wine or navy, elaborating the theme with a gorgeous tapestry patterned border with collar and cuffs to match.

To return to the subject of sweaters for children, one of the services which it is theirs to perform is to make it possible for little daughter to wear her pretty left-over-from-vacation dresses of gingham and English print and the like way late into autumn. That is just what the little girl in the picture is doing—topping her washable frock of English print with a cunning needle-darned slip-on.

Very popular, too, are little knitted cardigan sweater types for children. The fact that they button up the front makes them very practical. Being in solid color, close-knit and lightweight, they prove most wearable for little ones who love to romp and play.

Something new in infants' sweaters is the metal slide fastener, which insures perfect protection in that the garment is so securely held in place, yet easily unfastened at mother's will.

The ensemble is as much a theme to challenge the creative genius of with white fur, as shown in the picture, or else milady will wear a separate white-fox fur piece for early fall. The mode is surprisingly partial toward white fur in its initial showings. Which leads to an item of interest anent the new fashions—the fact that many of the new Alaskan and northern seal coats for this winter are taking showy collars and cuffs of white fur, which makes them wonderfully attractive and youthful looking.

As to the ensemble costumes of either satin or velvet, many of them are classic in their simplicity yet of compelling appearance, because of the superb texture of their fabrics. It is a fact, velvets never were so exquisitely lusterful and supple as are the new weaves. They yield to shirring as gracefully as does chiffon. Plaited-velvet skirts are the rage, topped with handsomely styled velvet jackets or either a metal-cloth or velvet blouse.

As to satin, while black leads, leaf-brown shades are a close second. These tune in most artfully with the season's handsome furs, which are appointed to lavishly trim late autumn and winter costumes, both of satin and velvet.

Brimless Helmet

The latest felt hat is a brimless toque, round as a helmet of the Middle ages, and trimmed usually with appliques of felt in contrasting shade and with elaborate flat feather designs.

New Touches

Fagoting is used increasingly on summer frocks. Lace edges, tiers and flounces and puff sleeves. Point d'esprit forms smart yokes on organdie dresses.

Bracelets for Sportswomen

The sportswoman will be interested in the new bracelets of large gold links like the slave bracelets. The center consists of a crystal plaque with colored dog heads set underneath, and on either side are smaller crystals with a hunting scene on one and a horse's head on the other.

And not beneath my feet,
Where I should trample on them

EVERYDAY FOODS

Almost everybody likes dumplings, but so many cooks complain about not being always sure of a light dumpling. Try these:

Farina Dumplings.—Take two cupfuls of milk and one cupful of boiling water. Put to cook in a double boiler with one cupful of farina, a teaspoonful of salt and cook until thick and smooth. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter and cool. When cooked add the yolks of two eggs, two tablespoonfuls of flour, and when well mixed fold in the whites of the eggs. Drop by spoonfuls into a shallow pan of salted water which has reached the boiling point. Keep the water just simmering while the dumplings are dropped in to keep them from falling to pieces. Boil covered for ten to twelve minutes, depending upon the size. Serve with chicken or any other kind of stew.

Veal Salad.—Cut one cupful of veal into dice, add three-fourths of a cupful of diced carrots cooked, one-fourth of a cupful of finely diced celery, one tablespoonful of minced onion, salt and paprika to taste. Mix all the ingredients, add boiled dressing to moisten, and arrange on lettuce; garnish with a spoonful of mayonnaise on each salad. Peas or other left-over vegetable may be used in place of the carrots.

Noodles cooked in boiling salted water and served covered with a cupful or more of browned buttered crumbs sprinkled over them make a nice change to serve as a vegetable in place of potatoes.

Filled Cake Pudding.—Make a plain butter cake and bake it in a deep basin. Cut off the bottom and scoop out the center of the cake, leaving a shell half an inch thick. Make a boiled custard of the yolks of the eggs left from the cake, add a few nuts and raisins and a cupful of cake crumbs. Fill the shell with the mixture, put on the cover and frost the top and the sides. Serve surrounded with whipped sweetened and flavored cream and garnish with cubes of jelly.

Helpful Hints.

If the feet are swollen, hot and sensitive as they are so apt to be when the housewife is much on her feet, bathe them in alcohol after giving them a good soaking in salt water.

The importance of well-fitting and comfortable shoes is vital. The habit of many women when the feet are tired and painful is to slip on old felt slippers. This is a most reprehensible habit as it only aggravates the trouble.

A heel should be large enough, even if high, to support the weight of the body.

Stockings should be long enough to avoid wrinkles and short enough to fit well and avoid joint trouble.

Many a backache, headache, fits of temper and bad nerves may be caused from poorly shod feet.

Change of shoes and hose twice daily helps the feet wonderfully. The shoes should be well aired and the hose perfectly dry before dressing the feet.

Use cold coffee or tea infusion for all kinds of ferns instead of water once a week, soaking the roots well.

Heat table salt very hot and fill the bottle; it will retain heat much longer than water, with no danger from leakage.

To keep a cake moist, cover with an icing while the cake is still warm; then put a jelly glass of water in the cake box. The air will be kept moist by the water and the cake will not dry. An apple is often used for this purpose.

To make a good temporary cement for any metal utensil, mix a little wood ashes with white of egg to make a thick paste. Put this over the hole and hold the utensil over the heat until the paste bakes.

Nitrate of soda is a good tonic for house plants that need it. Dissolve one teaspoonful in a quart of water and use it once a week to water the plants. This tonic will produce growth quickly in young healthy plants.

Here are a few things to remember by the amateur jelly maker: Fruit should never be used for jelly making or canning after a heavy rain, as it will be watery and tasteless.

Jars of wonderful fruit, so pretty in color, when tasted are entirely out of any class. The same is true of jelly; taste is one of the first requirements; it must be true to flavor.

When using fruits which lack pectin, such as strawberries, the addition of commercial pectin or apple juice will supply the lack and make a most delectable jelly.

Mend a leak in a hot water bottle with adhesive tape.

Wider Use of Steel Is Proof of Man's Advance

Steel production in the United States last year reached 48,000,000 tons, more than half of the world output, according to recent reports. Americans used about six times their own weight of the material as compared with little more than two times the weight of the population at the beginning of the Twentieth century. In 1500 the total estimated output of steel and iron for the entire world was about 50,000 tons, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. The increase in the production of the metals, keeping pace with the development of power machinery, has enabled a laborer to earn in a few hours today what would have required days a few centuries ago. One economist estimates that the ratio in favor of power over man toil is as high as 500 to one.

An Error of Omission

On Mother's day the children bought their mother a beautiful plant. Just a few days before Father's day, the mother said to the children: "Now, next Sunday is Father's day and you bought such a nice flower for me, I think it would be nice to get some nice flowers for dad." Little Ruthie could not quite understand. She said: "I don't see why. He didn't buy us a thing on Children's day."

Dazzy Vance Bears Down for Record

Some sports scribes have it doped out the reason Dazzy Vance, Brooklyn's great pitcher, loses so many close games is that he bears down too hard all the way, in order to increase his strikeout record.

Few first-class twirlers try for strikeouts these days, unless they are in a deep hole. The big idea is to coast along as easily as possible, depending on your mates, and save your best assortment for the tight places of the game.

Girl Handles Fight

The world's heavyweight championship bout between Dempsey and Tunney is being managed by a twenty-one year-old girl. She, herself, is a flyweight, tipping the scales at a mere 100. Tex Rickard placed Naoma Lowensohn, his private secretary, in complete charge of preliminary details for the fight. A year ago she handled $1,800,000 at the Dempsey-Tunney fight, this year $1,000,000 at the Dempsey-Sharkey bout. Photograph shows Miss Lowensohn starting her duties.

Cruickshank Believes Golf Helps Baseball

Bobby Cruickshank is a great baseball fan, like most of the professional golfers. His idea of the ultimate relaxation is taking in a ball game and watching Babe Ruth bust 'em.

Cruickshank scouts the idea that the golf swing is bad for the ball player. As a matter of fact, he believes a round or two of golf is ideal as part of spring training.

"The only ill effects that can come from golf to a big league ball player is through fatigue," says Cruickshank. "I wouldn't recommend playing 18 or 36 holes in the morning prior to an important game in the afternoon.

Golf takes something out of everybody, especially if one plays 36 holes. There is a physical, not to mention a certain mental strain that exacts its toll."

Claim Athletic Girl Is Prettier and Healthier

Miss E. W. Edwards, British girl athlete, who recently beat the 200-yard world's record for women by one-fifth of a second, denies that athletics tend to give women a masculine appearance.

"The idea that women cannot take part in athletic contests without losing their charm is absurd," says Miss Edwards. "We girls take our training seriously, in fact more seriously than men, but we do not allow it to interfere with our feminine interests. The sports girl is prettier and more healthy than the pampered woman of yesterday, a much fitter companion for men and a better mother to her children."

Lost His Own Job

Bob Coleman, manager of the Knoxville team, is a veteran catcher, who has run the string all the way. This spring he was not satisfied with his reserve catching and set out to find a capable aid for himself behind the bat. He finally came up with Jumbo Barrett from the Memphis club.

"Did you find that second-string catcher?" asked Scout Monahan.

"Did I find him? I'll say I did. I'm it myself. This guy Barrett is the team's first-string catcher."

Griffith Has Praise for College Players

The college baseball player was handed quite a severe rebuke a few years ago by one prominent big league manager and, about the same time, was complimented highly by another.

RED SOX HURLER GAINS CONTROL

MacFayden Shows Results Carrigan's Teaching.

Fans looking over the American league batting averages have been familiar with the name MacFayden at the head of the list, a position he attained by making a safe hit once in a while when he was in the game. Now young MacFayden is getting some consideration as a pitcher because he hurled a mighty neat game recently against the Cleveland team.

In this day of poor pitching a well-hurled game attracts much attention. MacFayden is a slight-built youngster who is not through growing as yet. Carrigan has been nursing him along in fine style and getting some encouraging signs of pitching from the former school star.

What appeals especially to Carrigan about MacFayden's work is his fine control. In his best-pitched game of the season, that against the Indians, he scattered six hits through nine innings and three of the hits were of the scratchy variety. One base on balls was charged against him.

Jack McCallister said after the game that the youngster showed as fine a sample of control as he had seen this season. He said that all during the game Mac did not give the Indians one good ball to hit at. He had speed, curves and a change of pace that was baffling.

It is said that MacFayden has spent more time developing control than any pitcher on the Red Sox staff. He has taken Carrigan's lessons about control to heart and he will be a good pitcher if Carrigan can get him developed the way he has set out to do it.

The story about the Nashville golfer who hit a robin on the wing reminds us that a golfer would do that if the robin happened to break into song at just the wrong moment.

WHEN FRIENDSHIP ENDS

(© by D. J. Walsh.)

THE girl's eyes had a look of eager expectancy in them. Every now and then she raised her head and looked out of the window, which was close to her bed. Eight feet below she could see life hurrying and scurrying on without her. But that did not trouble Mary Comstock at this particular moment. Surely, in a little while she would see Amy Dupont's vivid little face coming toward her. Of course, Amy would come. There was no doubt about that. She lived only a block away from the hospital, anyway. She wouldn't desert her chum now that she was ill; for had not Amy been her faithful friend ever since childhood? Had they not made a pledge to stick together no matter what happened True, Amy had been the chief cause of her unhappiness, but that was unintentional. It wasn't Amy's fault, only Mary's misfortune. If Amy came, her bright face would be with Mary for weeks afterward through the long, wakeful nights. Mary's quick ear detected a light step. That must be Amy now. She glanced up and her face fell a little in disappointment. It was only another nurse entering the ward.

It seemed as though she had known Amy all her life. They had gone through grammar school and high school together. There had not been an escapade, joy or sorrow that Mary had not shared with Amy. Mary chuckled a little as she thought of what fat, placid Mrs. Brown, a neighbor of theirs, had once said.

"I do declare, I never did see two girls stick to each other as much as Mary and Amy do. They like each other better than they do their own folks."

The girl saw herself and Amy at the age of eight walking home from school together, arm in arm. Amy suddenly paused and said:

"Let's be chums."

"All right," Mary agreed, and then she tore a piece off her blue hair ribbon and handed part of it to her companion. "Let's keep this always, 'cause blue means loyalty."

When they were both sixteen, Amy had the flu. Mary had gone to Amy's home and helped nurse her until she was well again. The following week, due to her exposure to the disease, Mary, too, had the flu. Somehow, Amy never did go to see her. Not that it was her fault. She was so popular that she did not have a minute to spare.

A few weeks later there was an incident at one of the many parties she and Amy had attended that stood out in her memory. Almost every man in their crowd had fallen a victim to Amy's charms. She was always surrounded by men. Never did she dance one dance straight through with one man. Always some one cut in. Mary at that particular moment was sitting in a corner talking with Jim Graham. Dear, big handsome Jim, with his plans and dreams which he always confided to Mary. Her heart smote her as she thought of him. He was the only man who had not been attracted to Amy. Jim was recognized as Mary's private property, and no one ever intruded upon them. Mary and Jim, absorbed in each other, were a little startled to hear a wild, musical little laugh. There stood Amy in front of them, her black head thrown back, her eyes sparkling, her cheeks two burning spots of color, and her dimples flashing.

"Do come out into the garden, Jim," she urged. "The moonlight is just wonderful. I'm sure Mary won't mind." With that she pulled the reluctant Jim away from Mary's side, leaving Mary to sit in her remote corner fuming with rage. But somehow one could not be angry with Amy very long. Mary forgave her the very next day.

Next came the happiest period of Mary's life. She and Jim were engaged. The months of her engagement were deliriously happy ones for Mary. She was not only happy because of herself and Jim, but because of Amy's happiness as well. Amy was now married to Jerome Baxter, one of the wealthiest boys of the city.

A few days before Mary's wedding Amy came to her home with tears in her eyes.

"Please give Jim up for me, Mary dear. You can't possibly love him as much as I do."

"Give him up! Why, Amy, are you crazy? I—I can't give him up for anybody, not even for you. I love him—love him. Do you hear me? And, besides, you are a married woman. You owe some duty to your husband. Why, he worships you, Amy."

"But I love Jim. I don't love my husband. Anyhow, Jim told me that he loves me, not you. He said he couldn't break his word to you."

"That's a lie!" Mary flung out. "I can't, I won't believe it. It's not true. I won't give him up. I won't."

"All right," Amy retorted. "If you want to spoil his happines as well as mine, go ahead." With that she left Mary sitting listlessly in a chair, pale and shaken.

That night she could not bring herself to return Jim's ring, but she treated him coldly. Troubled and mystified, Jim left the house earlier than usual. Two hours later he was found dead. When his car collided with another, with him was Amy. Somehow, miraculously enough, she had escaped injury. Mary in her wild frenzy of grief accused Amy of eloping with her sweetheart. But Amy explained the matter satisfactorily and forgave Mary for her bitter accusation.

"You dear goosie," Amy said. "Didn't you guess that day when I told you I loved Jim that it was only a little game. I love no one else but my husband. That evening Jerome was out on business. Feeling lonesome, I went to a 'movie.' On my way home I met Jim in his car. He asked me to take a ride with him, and then told me how cruelly you had treated him. Just when I was trying to explain to him that it was all a joke, that — that — dreadful accident occurred. Oh, it's too terrible to speak about!" Mary still remembered the two great tears that had rolled down Amy's cheeks.

"Poor, dear, little Amy. Always trying to help her Mary out and getting into trouble. Mary brushed a tear away from her eyes as she thought of these things. And dear Jim. The shock of his death and that of her parents shortly afterward had completely broken her health.

Suddenly, Mary heard a silvery little laugh. Ah, she knew Amy would not fail her, was she not her chum? It was Amy, sure enough. That gay little laugh was unmistakable. Mary glanced out of the window and found that Amy and her husband were standing just below it.

"Come," Jerome Baxter said to his wife, "let's go in and see your friend, Mary."

"Oh, I hate hospitals, and I can't stand sick persons, especially a sentimental little fool like Mary. Hurry back to the office, old dear. You must not waste too much time with your wife after giving her such an expensive lunch. I'm going home to get my beauty sleep so that I'll be nice and rosy for the cabaret party tonight."

The nurse in the hospital ward looked up from her work as a sob reached her ears.

New Treatment Gives Porosity to Concrete

"Ice concrete" is the name of a new porous and light building material recently invented in Finland. This new substance is made of cement and sand, like any other concrete, but it differs greatly from ordinary concrete in that it has been made extremely porous by mixing it with crushed ice and snow. Then the moisture is evaporated through heating. By this process the block or the brick is honeycombed evenly by tiny pores. No additional water in composition is needed since the water required is formed through the melting of the ice or snow.

The degree of porousness of this concrete can be accurately determined in advance by the quantity of ice or snow used. Consequently, the weight of the material is in direct relation to the number and the size of the pores. It is possible to use as much as from 50 to 80 per cent of ice or snow in the mixture, thus producing millions of minute pores throughout the material. In Finland, Sweden and Denmark numerous buildings have been erected, using ice concrete.—Scientific American.

Production of Gum Aided by Bacteria

There have been reported to the Royal Society of New South Wales the results of an investigation of the curious role played by bacteria in the formation of various vegetable gums.

The action of the bacteria appears to be more complex than might have been supposed. There are, for instance, two kinds of gum arabic—one soluble in water, the other insoluble—and the investigations of the New South Wales experts show that they are produced by two distinct kinds of bacteria. By the cultivation of suitable species of bacteria it is possible to augment the production of gum by certain trees. Under ordinary conditions some species of gum-making bacteria live and multiply without the production of an appreciable amount of gum, but the product is markedly increased by furnishing tannin to the micro-organisms.

Culture's High Place

Culture is the highest human justice. It is the attainment of mind and soul which can consider with equanimity two sides of any issue; which can weigh without prejudice all phases of any interest; and which can differ without scorn with any extreme of another's vision.—Katherine Locke.

Defoe Never Cut Out for Business Career

Daniel Defoe, the author of "Robinson Crusoe," attempted to establish himself in the business world, but he failed miserably. When he was about thirty years old he failed for about $85,000, large sum for the period, but he afterward paid his creditors in full, although they had accepted a scaling down of their debts at the time of his failure. A few years later he embarked in business again as a tile maker, but this venture also proved unfortunate, and he lost $15,000. Thereafter he kept to writing, which was more suited to his genius, although his energy and his imagination might have made him a business leader if Seventeenth century conditions had been more like those of today. He got into serious trouble when he published his "Shortest Way With the Dissenters," which a good many respectable people indorsed because they were too stupid to realize that it was a satire at their expense. This made them furiously angry and Defoe had to go into hiding. Finally he surrendered and was sentenced to stand in the pillory and to be imprisoned. But the populace acclaimed him and turned what was meant to be his humiliation into an ovation. He finally won his release and established a paper issued three times a week, which he wrote from cover to cover. He was nearly sixty years old when he wrote the story of "Robinson Crusoe."—Kansas City Star.

"What is my present car worth in trade?"

OCCASIONALLY you hear a car owner say: "I'm going to buy such and such a new car because the dealer has offered me the best deal on my present car."

But without understanding the economics of trade-in transactions, you cannot be sure that the largest allowance offered means the best deal for you.

These are basic facts:

1 Your present car has only one fundamental basis of value; i. e., what the dealer who accepts it in trade can get for it in the used car market.

2 Your present car has seemingly different values because competitive dealers are bidding to sell you a new car.

3 The largest allowance offered is not necessarily the best deal for you. Sometimes it is; sometimes it is not.

4 An excessive allowance may mean that you are paying an excessive price for the new car in comparison with its real value.

5 First judge the merits of the new car in comparison with its price, including all delivery and finance charges. Then weigh any difference in allowance offered on your present car.

Remember that when you trade-in your present car you are after all making a purchase, not a sale. You are simply applying your present car as a credit toward the purchase price of a new car.

Will Visit in Worcester, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. Dent Macdonough left yesterday for the east for a brief trip. They will spend some time in Worcester, Mass., and will linger for a month at the home of the parents of Mr. Macdonough at New York. Mr. Macdonough, who is the manager and owner of the Ormondale Stock Farm at Portola, is a grandson of the late Mrs. J. Macdonough, who was a sister of Mr. O'Brien, one of the bonanza kings, from whom she inherited a large fortune. She resided here for many years during her life time.

Tax Rate Fixed

The total tax rate as fixed by the supervisors last Tuesday for the fiscal year is $5.597 as against the rate of $5.729 established last year. Included in the latter was the special tax of seventy cents for purchasing the site and erecting the new school building in Stanford Park. This year a special rate of fifteen cents is made for a kindergarten that is to be started in the near future.

Preparatory College Opens

Next Wednesday at noon St. Joseph's preparatory college at Los Altoh opens for the fall term Here young men are prepared for the priesthood, spending four years before ordination at St. Patrick's Seminary here. Frank J. Maloney, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Maloney of Menlo Park, has matriculated in the institution and on Wednesday will begin his theological career. He graduated with honors from St. Joheph's Parochial school last June. He is a bright student and a had and diligent worker. The boy has eleven long years of constant study ahead of him before he reaches the final goal or ordination. The boy has plenty of pluck and courage to carry out his plans and sufficient ability to win success at his chosen profession to which his young heart is devoted. His numerous friends in Menlo Park hope and pray that his most roseate dreams in the holy calling to which he has dedicated his young life may be realized.

Little Opposition to Incorporation

Incorporation headquarters in the bank building is daily receiving encouragement from the taxpayers and voters of Menlo Park Very little opposition has appeared. All factions have been harmonized so that it would seem that incorporation will go over big at the forthcoming election next month. The results would be manifest the day after election. Property values will certainly go up. The population of Menlo Park would double in a short time Favorable comment is heard on all sides concerning incorporation It is the only course to pursue. Let the election be unanimous.

Coryell Home Destroyed by Fire

The J. B. Coryell home was destroyed by fire last Sunday. The Menlo Park fire department was on the scene early and despite its work the building was ruined. The blaze was caused by a grass fire close to the dwelling. It was an old land mark having been erected in the sixties. In the seventies and for many years afterwards it was owned and occupied by the late M. Hecht, the well-known shoe man. At one time the estate was occupied by Lady Balfour of England. Mr. Coryell has owned the estate for twenty-five years. At one time the estate was known nationally for the quality and number of orchids grown there. Mr. Coryell secured the choicest bulbs from South America and other parts of the world so that his choice collection was the best in the country. Esthetic admirers of flower came from far and near to see the rare blooms. The collection was finally sold at big prices by Mr. Coryell.

Menlo Autoists Crash Victims

Mrs. Joseph P. Fallon of Menlo Park was injured severely Saturday when the automobile driven by her chauffeur, Manuel Escoto, overturned on a curve on the Yosemite road south of Merced. She was taken unconscious to a Merced hospital and revived after an operation.

Joseph Fallon, her husband, and George, her son, incurred injuries which were less severe. The chauffeur got a badly cut scalp. Mr. Fallon is the widely known San Francisco attorney who last year bought the Atherton Macondray home in Watlington Park, near the highway at Atherton. His son is a Stanford student.

J. H. O'Keefe Dwelling Leased

J. H. O'Keefe dwelling on the highway has been leased by the owner to F. W. Johnson, superintendent of road construction for the Thirl township. Mr. Johnson recently sold his home in Atherton.

Dove Season Opens

Dove season opened last Thursday. Hunters sought the haunts of the birds but few bags were taken. They appear to be quite scarce in the places where they were formerly so plentiful. As a game county San Mateo is slowly going out of the picture. The settling up of the big estate is driving all wild life away to localities with broader areas and less population.

Leave for Iowa

Mrs. Martin Walsh and Mrs. Barney Burke departed last week for Cedar Rapids, Iowa, the birth place of the late Martin Walsh. The ladies will remain there for a month. After visiting other places of interest they will return to Menlo Park.

Visitors From Reno

J. B. Lynch and wife of Reno, Nevada, spent the week end with relatives in Menlo Park. They were accompanied on the trip by Andrew Young, in charge of the experimental station at the Nevada university. Mr. Lynch is the superintendent of the vast grounds of that institution and is also custodian of all the buildings on the campus. Several students from Menlo Park are attending the university there.

Parochial School Opened Monday

St. Joseph's Parochial School opened last Tuesday with a large registration. The well-known institution is crowded to capacity, so much so that it is quite a problem for the good sisters to provide room for all the children wishing to attend.

Notre Dame Convent at Belmont opened for the fall term Tuesday. Among the new pupils attending from Menlo Park are: Carmel O'Keefe, Dorothy Taylor Emily McCarthy, Isabelle McCluthcy, Virginia Tousey. They all graduated from St. Joseph's school last June.

WOODSIDE NOTES

The Portola branch night school which had its beginning only a few weeks ago is in such flourishing condition that members feel that they should have a school publication of their own. An editorial staff has been elected with John N. Duzanica as editor-in-chief and the paper, which is to be known as "The Portola Evening News," will be issued monthly. A social evening is planned by the school for the near future.

Dr. Alanson Weeks entertained a party of nine other physicians mostly members of the Family Club, with a stag party at his home on Saturday night.

The musicale and tea given by Mrs. Daniel Jackling for the benefit of the Church of Our Lady of the Wayside on Sunday last was a distinct success musically, socially and financially.

Dr. Bradford Leavitt has returned to Pasadena where he will resume preaching services at his church on Sunday next. His family, however, will remain here during the month of September.

Miss Anne Duzanica of Portola, who graduated in June from the Sequoia Union High School, is attending the Teachers College at San Jose.

M. T. Nunes and family from Clements, California, were guests of J. T. Nunes over the holidays.

The Parent-Teacher Association of Woodside will hold their first card party of the season at the club quarters on the evening of September 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley G. Harris and family returned to their home in San Francisco last week.

Peter Koehorst has returned from a two weeks' business trip to Sacramento.
